This class is designed for individuals who do not work in healthcare but who desire, or are required, to have CPR, AED, and first aid knowledge and skills in order to respond to medical emergencies (e.g., camp directors and counselors, emergency response teams in business and industry, school bus drivers, adult residential personnel, child care workers, teachers, parents, and babysitters).

Topics include: CPR, use of and AED, and first aid.

The goal of the PALS course is to improve the quality of care provided to seriously ill or injured children, resulting in improved outcomes. The PALS course is for healthcare providers who respond to emergencies in infants and children.
