- Students will apply the scientific method and critical thinking skills in order to draw logical conclusions based on the analysis of scientific data.
- Students will use technology by applying computer and information literacy skills to access online learning materials and conduct online research.
- Students will use verbal and writing skills to discuss their personal ethical values, and present factual information which can be used to justify their philosophical positions on controversial environmental issues.

Assessment

2 comprehensive Exams x 100 pts
18 online P/F homework assignments x 10 pts/each
12 highest out of 18 online quizzes x 10 pts/each

Validation (What methods have you used or will you use to validate your assessment?)

Homework assignments and quizzes are assessed automatically by online educational programs designed by the publishers of the course textbook. The instructor designs these assignments using items supplied by the text book publisher (Pearson). Each assessment item is linked to a specific learning objective and ranked by difficulty level 1-5.

The Common Midterm and Final Exams consist of items derived from the publisher's test bank and include items with a range of difficulty.

Follow-up

Online homework assignments, quizzes, and class exams are continually edited to align items with course content.

Budget Justification

Since this course is conducted almost solely online, students rarely make use of the SLC or campus-based computer networks/printers. Two exams are administered in the Testing Center.
