Promise Pathway Program

This NEW initiative is designed to address the financial barriers for high school students who have the academic readiness and commitment to succeed in college, but lack all the necessary financial resources to do so, even if they qualify for federal financial aid.

This program is designed to build upon financial aid resources that are already available for students who come from low-income families, such as federal Pell grants and public and private scholarship programs,” said HCC President Guy Altieri. “The program will provide additional financial support as needed, beyond grants and scholarships, to every student admitted into the program to address direct student expenses associated with earning a degree or other college credit credential at HCC.”

Promise Pathway Program

The primary goal of the Promise Pathway Program is to assist eligible students in earning a college credential at HCC (a letter of recognition, program certificate, or associate degree), through financial assistance and academic guidance and mentoring before they start college.

The primary criteria for admission into and retention within the program are:

- maintenance of a minimum 2.5 GPA in high school and at HCC
- documented family financial need
- commitment to complete the FAFSA application

All applicants must apply for and use all available federal and state aid, as well as external scholarships they have, before the “promise dollars” are awarded.

Initial applications will be accepted beginning in early March 2017.
