What is the Visual Arts Program?

HCC's Visual Arts Program is designed to challenge and encourage creative excellence and professional growth for visual arts majors specializing in painting, drawing, sculpture, photography, illustration, and other related fields. HCC understands the demands of four-year colleges and has maximized instructional depth in both foundation and upper level classes to meet transfer requirements and expectations.

In a structured, supportive environment, students learn how to apply acquired skills to create successful images in each discipline. Emphasis is on observation and skill training. Learning how to overcome creative blocks by identifying and solving problems builds student confidence and excellence.

Studio art classes are small and limited to 12 students, which allows abundant time for students to work one-on-one with instructors in order to maximize the learning experience.

An exit portfolio review, an important step to the next level, is required of each visual arts major who wishes to pursue a bachelor of fine arts degree or go directly into creative fields such as photography or other design areas.

A newly formed collaboration between HCC, the Washington County Museum of Fine Arts, and the Washington County Arts Council will offer students work-study opportunities in exhibiting and curating.

Classes in this program are organized into two categories: foundation or 100 level classes and upper or 200 level classes.

Studio classes include:

- Ceramics I and II
- Digital Painting & Drawing I and II
- Drawing I and II
- Figure Drawing
- Painting I and II
- Photography I and II
- Portraiture
- Sculpture I and II
- Two-Dimensional Design

* A complete listing of classes and requirements can be found in the College Catalog at www.hagerstowncc.edu/academics/catalogs.

What is the employment outlook for careers in the visual arts?

Many fine arts majors specialize in one or two art disciplines choosing from painting, drawing, sculpting, ceramics, or photography. However, career opportunities span a broad spectrum of art related fields available to art majors such as illustration, art direction, animation, cartooning, printmaking, and multimedia presentations.

For those interested in conceptual art or design, options include jewelry, fibers and textiles, furniture, glassware, and set and exhibit installations. Fashion design and illustration offers additional opportunities. Industrial design—including conceptual development of cars, home appliances, toys, kitchens, baths, lighting, closets and buildings, products, and environments that are inherently accessible to older people—can lead the way to a career in architecture or landscape architecture. Other opportunities include interior design, archivists, curators, and museum technicians.

Why should I choose HCC?

The HCC Visual Arts Faculty

Art faculty members hold advanced degrees and are experienced educators and exhibiting artists in the disciplines they teach. Each instructor is committed to studio excellence both in instruction and in student achievement. The small classes offer the best possible means of achieving these goals.

Faculty members lead with their skills and experience working with students one-on-one in the studio. The learning process is extended through the use of online resources, which helps to connect faculty and students outside the classroom.

Tutoring is available and students are encouraged to take full advantages of these services to assure a successful semester.

The HCC Visual Arts Facility

The Kepler Performing and Visual Arts Education Center is designed specifically to house the arts: visual arts, music, dance, multimedia, and theater. The Kepler Center is an inviting venue for students to gather for a visit, to study, or simply enjoy the beautifully designed Campus Gallery.

Studios are specifically designed for each art discipline. There are two visual arts studios in the Kepler Center. One is equipped with easels for drawing and painting and the other with professional drafting tables for design. Each studio offers students an environment in which to do their best work.

In addition, the Career Programs Building, also located on HCC's campus, features a professional studio for ceramics, sculpture, and jewelry.
